Regarding the Belleclaire Golf & Country Club at Bay-side, Long Island, which already has reached a degree of popularity that was not anticipated for at least a year, I wish to say that members may send as many guests as they wish to play over the course and to enjoy the privileges of the Club House on days other than holidays, Saturdays and Sundays, with the understanding that the fee for guests is $2.00 per person whether they use the golf course a whole or half day.

On holidays, Saturdays and Sundays, the limit of the number of guests a member may entertain is three and then the member must appear in person with them. This restriction applies to golf and tennis players.

Motorist members may bring along as many guests as they please at any time, it being understood that motorists have become members merely for the purpose of having the privileges of a country club where they may be certain of getting good meals for themselves and their friends.

The dining room facilities are such—owing to additions and improvements—that 200 persons may be promptly served at one sitting.

They will be served with the same quality of food that has made the Hotel Belleclaire so popular. They will have, also, the same fine cooking.

If organizations of business men desire the privileges of the Belleclaire Golf & Country Club for their one-day tournaments, I will be very glad to accommodate them on days other than holidays, Saturdays and Sundays.

No golf course in the Metropolitan district is more accessible or furnishes more conveniences. Certainly no country club anywhere has better facilities for serving first-class meals.

My hotel friends throughout the country have requested to be allowed to become associate members of the Belleclaire Golf & Country Club and to have the privilege of introducing their home-town friends to us, with the idea of letting them play golf over our course while they are visiting New York. I have decided to comply with their request, knowing full well that they will introduce to us guests only that members will be glad to meet.

The greatest number of players that can be accommodated on an 18-hole golf course—all of them playing in foursomes—is 192, and even this number will have to be handled on a time schedule rigidly adhered to.

The Belleclaire Golf & Country Club is now ready to serve its members and their friends with splendid meals and other club house comforts and conveniences that I am sure will please all of them very much.

The membership is growing with men and women who qualify on the platform of good-fellowship and character—and since this is the only platform upon which members are selected, it goes without saying that there is no prejudice or restriction as to an individual's race or religion.

A club formed on ideals of Democracy cannot have unfair and unreasonable prejudices.

Proprietor.
